Profile Introduction

Laura's practice area involves representation of public and private entities in a wide variety of labor and employment matters, including those involving harassment, discrimination, retaliation, discipline, wage and hour issues, contract disputes, wrongful termination, state and federal leave laws, and negligence actions. Prior to becoming an attorney, Laura worked for over a decade with public sector employers, where she gained a solid foundation in government administration. She works with clients on a wide variety of litigation matters, and also enjoys being a legal resource for labor and employment questions.

In her spare time, she loves to bake, hike, and spend time with friends and family.
